DE LA SALLE HIGH SCHOOL
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

"I shall not seek and I will not accept the nomination of my party for President of the United States."

With these words President Lyndon Johnson shocked the world . . . What had been for years taken for granted was suddenly eliminated—changing the old ideas and molding new ones. This, of course, was perhaps the basic philosophy behind the 1968-69 school year at De La Salle: Reverence for traditional institutions remained, while a spirited faculty and student body forged toward the new, challenging ideas, helping to shape countless future generations of Cavaliers.

There was the time honored institution of Homecoming Week, where fledgling students ceased to be boys entering high school, and were officially christened Cavaliers, thus embarking on a mature path of learning that would lead to many successful careers. But there were also experiments in education, such as "team teaching" and "television classrooms."

Football, basketball, and other physical pursuits enjoyed another successful year—but could not match the sparkling record of DLS's Prep Quiz Bowl team, as they became the first such team to retire undefeated, with victories over Jesuit, Dominican, and St. Augustine.

Thus we see that 1968, dubbed the "Year of the Cavalier", was, for De La Salle, a year of both change and tradition. But the Cavaliers were never ones to limit their activities merely to the school grounds.

Among other achievements, De La Salle hosted state conventions, volunteered students to serve as opera extras, participated in the Repertory Theatre program, and was well represented by Cavalier debaters in the citywide "Student Congress" and "Model U.N." programs.

With all of this academic success, one could hardly expect the sporting scene to go begging. On the gridiron, DLS completed a fine 8-3 worksheet, while on the court the Cavaliers became semi-finalists for the state championship. For minor sports, too, it was the "Year of the Cavalier". The wrestling team sent two Cavs to state championships, while the swimming team placed two city champions.

Events not explicitly connected with life at De La Salle were certainly explosive—and as the '68 graduates look back on the world's first heart transplants, New Orleans' 250th Anniversary, Jim Garrison's probe, the national "Twiggy" craze, and the Vietnam peace talks, they will realize that they are extremely lucky to be Cavaliers at a time of such unrelenting change and reformation—and that perhaps their training will enable them to take part in helping to mold a new life for mankind.

1968, was, indeed, a special year. It was a year of success and failure, tradition and change, defeat and glory. It was a year memorable to many students for many reasons. But every heart and mind at De La Salle will cherish its memory as the "Year of the Cavalier".

Dedication

Mr. Welman Bercegeay

If it's true that "Idleness is the devil's workshop", then Mr. Welman Bercegeay must certainly be constantly watched by a legion of guardian angels. In his sixteen year career at De La Salle, the only subjects this dedicated educator has NOT taught are chemistry and physics, this, of course, is in addition to his myriad duties as student counselor. Well qualified in his profession, he has earned a Masters in administration from LSU, and a Masters in Education at Xavier University. He is presently working toward a Ph.D. in Education at LSU.

Mr. Bercegeay, the father of five children, began his illustrious career at DLS as an English teacher in 1952, only three years after De La Salle first opened its doors. Anxious to help his students in more than a directly academic nature, he began to take part in the Cavaliers' counseling work, and since that time has served the Cavs faithfully in this difficult area of education. Innumerable Cavaliers have found this generous and unselfish gesture invaluable, secure in the knowledge that they have an understanding friend to which they can turn in times of stress.

Because of Mr. Bercegeay's counseling efforts, countless students have left the halls of De La Salle morally as well as academically fortified for the pitfalls of life.

The students of DLS are not the only ones to benefit from his aid, however. Among DLS teachers he is good naturedly ribbed as "dean of the lay faculty".

Besides his noteworthy advances in the field of guidance, Mr. Bercegeay's achievements in the field of education are also worthy of notice. Beginning in De La Salle's English Department, he has since become chairman of that important area of Cavalier education. Thus, the Cavs who do not directly benefit from Mr. Bercegeay's teaching know that he has had a large role in formulating their program of study.

At times when DLS was in need of teachers in other subjects, Mr. Bercegeay participated in the instruction of social studies, religion, and sciences on the various levels. As if that were not more than enough responsibility, he will accept the duties of alumni director during the coming school year.

Throughout Mr. Bercegeay's career, one fact remains outstanding—he has unfailingly demonstrated by personal action one of the most essential qualities of a Cavalier: unselfish aid to others.

Every Cavalier extends his true gratitude for Mr. Bercegeay's part in making this and every other year the "Year of the Cavalier".

Brother Francois Theoret, F.S.C.

Jubilarian

The Cavaliers of next year's Class of '69 will have among them several students who are quite proficient in speaking and writing French. These graduates will owe this cultural area of their education to Brother Francois Theoret, a Canadian visitor to De La Salle.

Brother Francois hails from Montreal, and has visited the United States and De La Salle in order to become more fluent in English and to enlarge his teaching experience.

Judging from his students' ability in French and his own skill in teaching the language, (of which he has perfect command), one can readily draw the conclusion that his efforts as an educator have been a complete success.

Additional testimony to this fact comes from France's cultural attache, Mr. Pettinelli, when he stated that "Brother Francois is an excellent teacher. After observing his classes it has been my pleasure to note that his students are becoming quite fluent in speaking the French language."

Besides his teaching, Brother Francois's achievements as a Christian Brother have been numerous, and in recognition of his many accomplishments, Brother celebrated his 25th Anniversary as a Brother of the Christian Schools during this year.

This summer, Brother will return to Canada, as his permit to visit the United States expires after two years. It is our hope that Brother Francois will return to De La Salle, and guide many more Cavaliers to a fluent command of his native tongue.

Student Council ... The Year Of The Cavalier

Student leaders of the past have echoed the ideas of communication and encouragement, but the seniors of '68 can boast that the members of their class who served unselfishly as members of the 1968 student council transformed the hollow echoes into positive action.

Concentrating on new and revitalized programs, the '68 council succeeded in molding the entire faculty and student body into a spirited liaison unmatched in the history of the school.

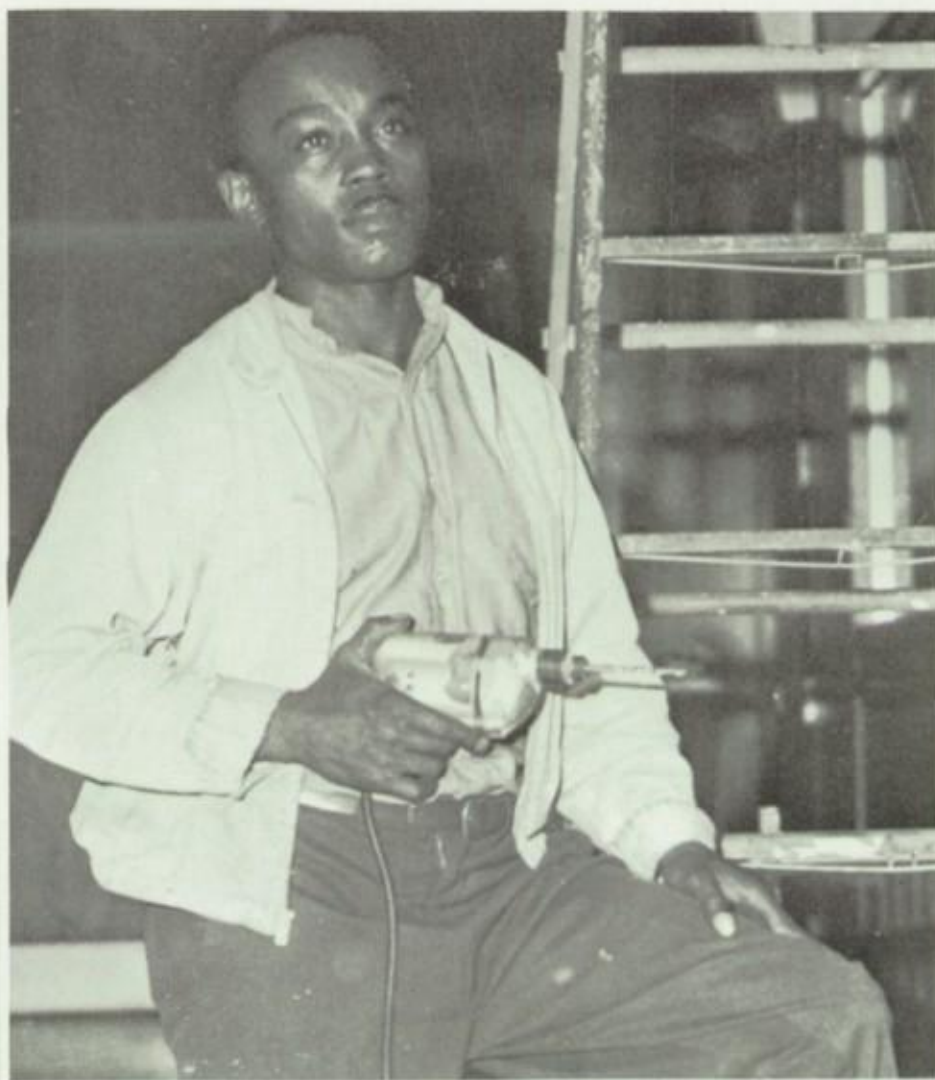

Student Council open meeting held before the entire student body.

Officers are: Standing: Phil Disalvo. Seated: David Meyer, Daryl Danielson, Bob Carrere, Chuck Dickey.

While councils of the future may plan more dances or create more awards, they will perhaps never achieve the overwhelming spirit generated by our present council: for they made every student constantly aware that he was a Cavalier.

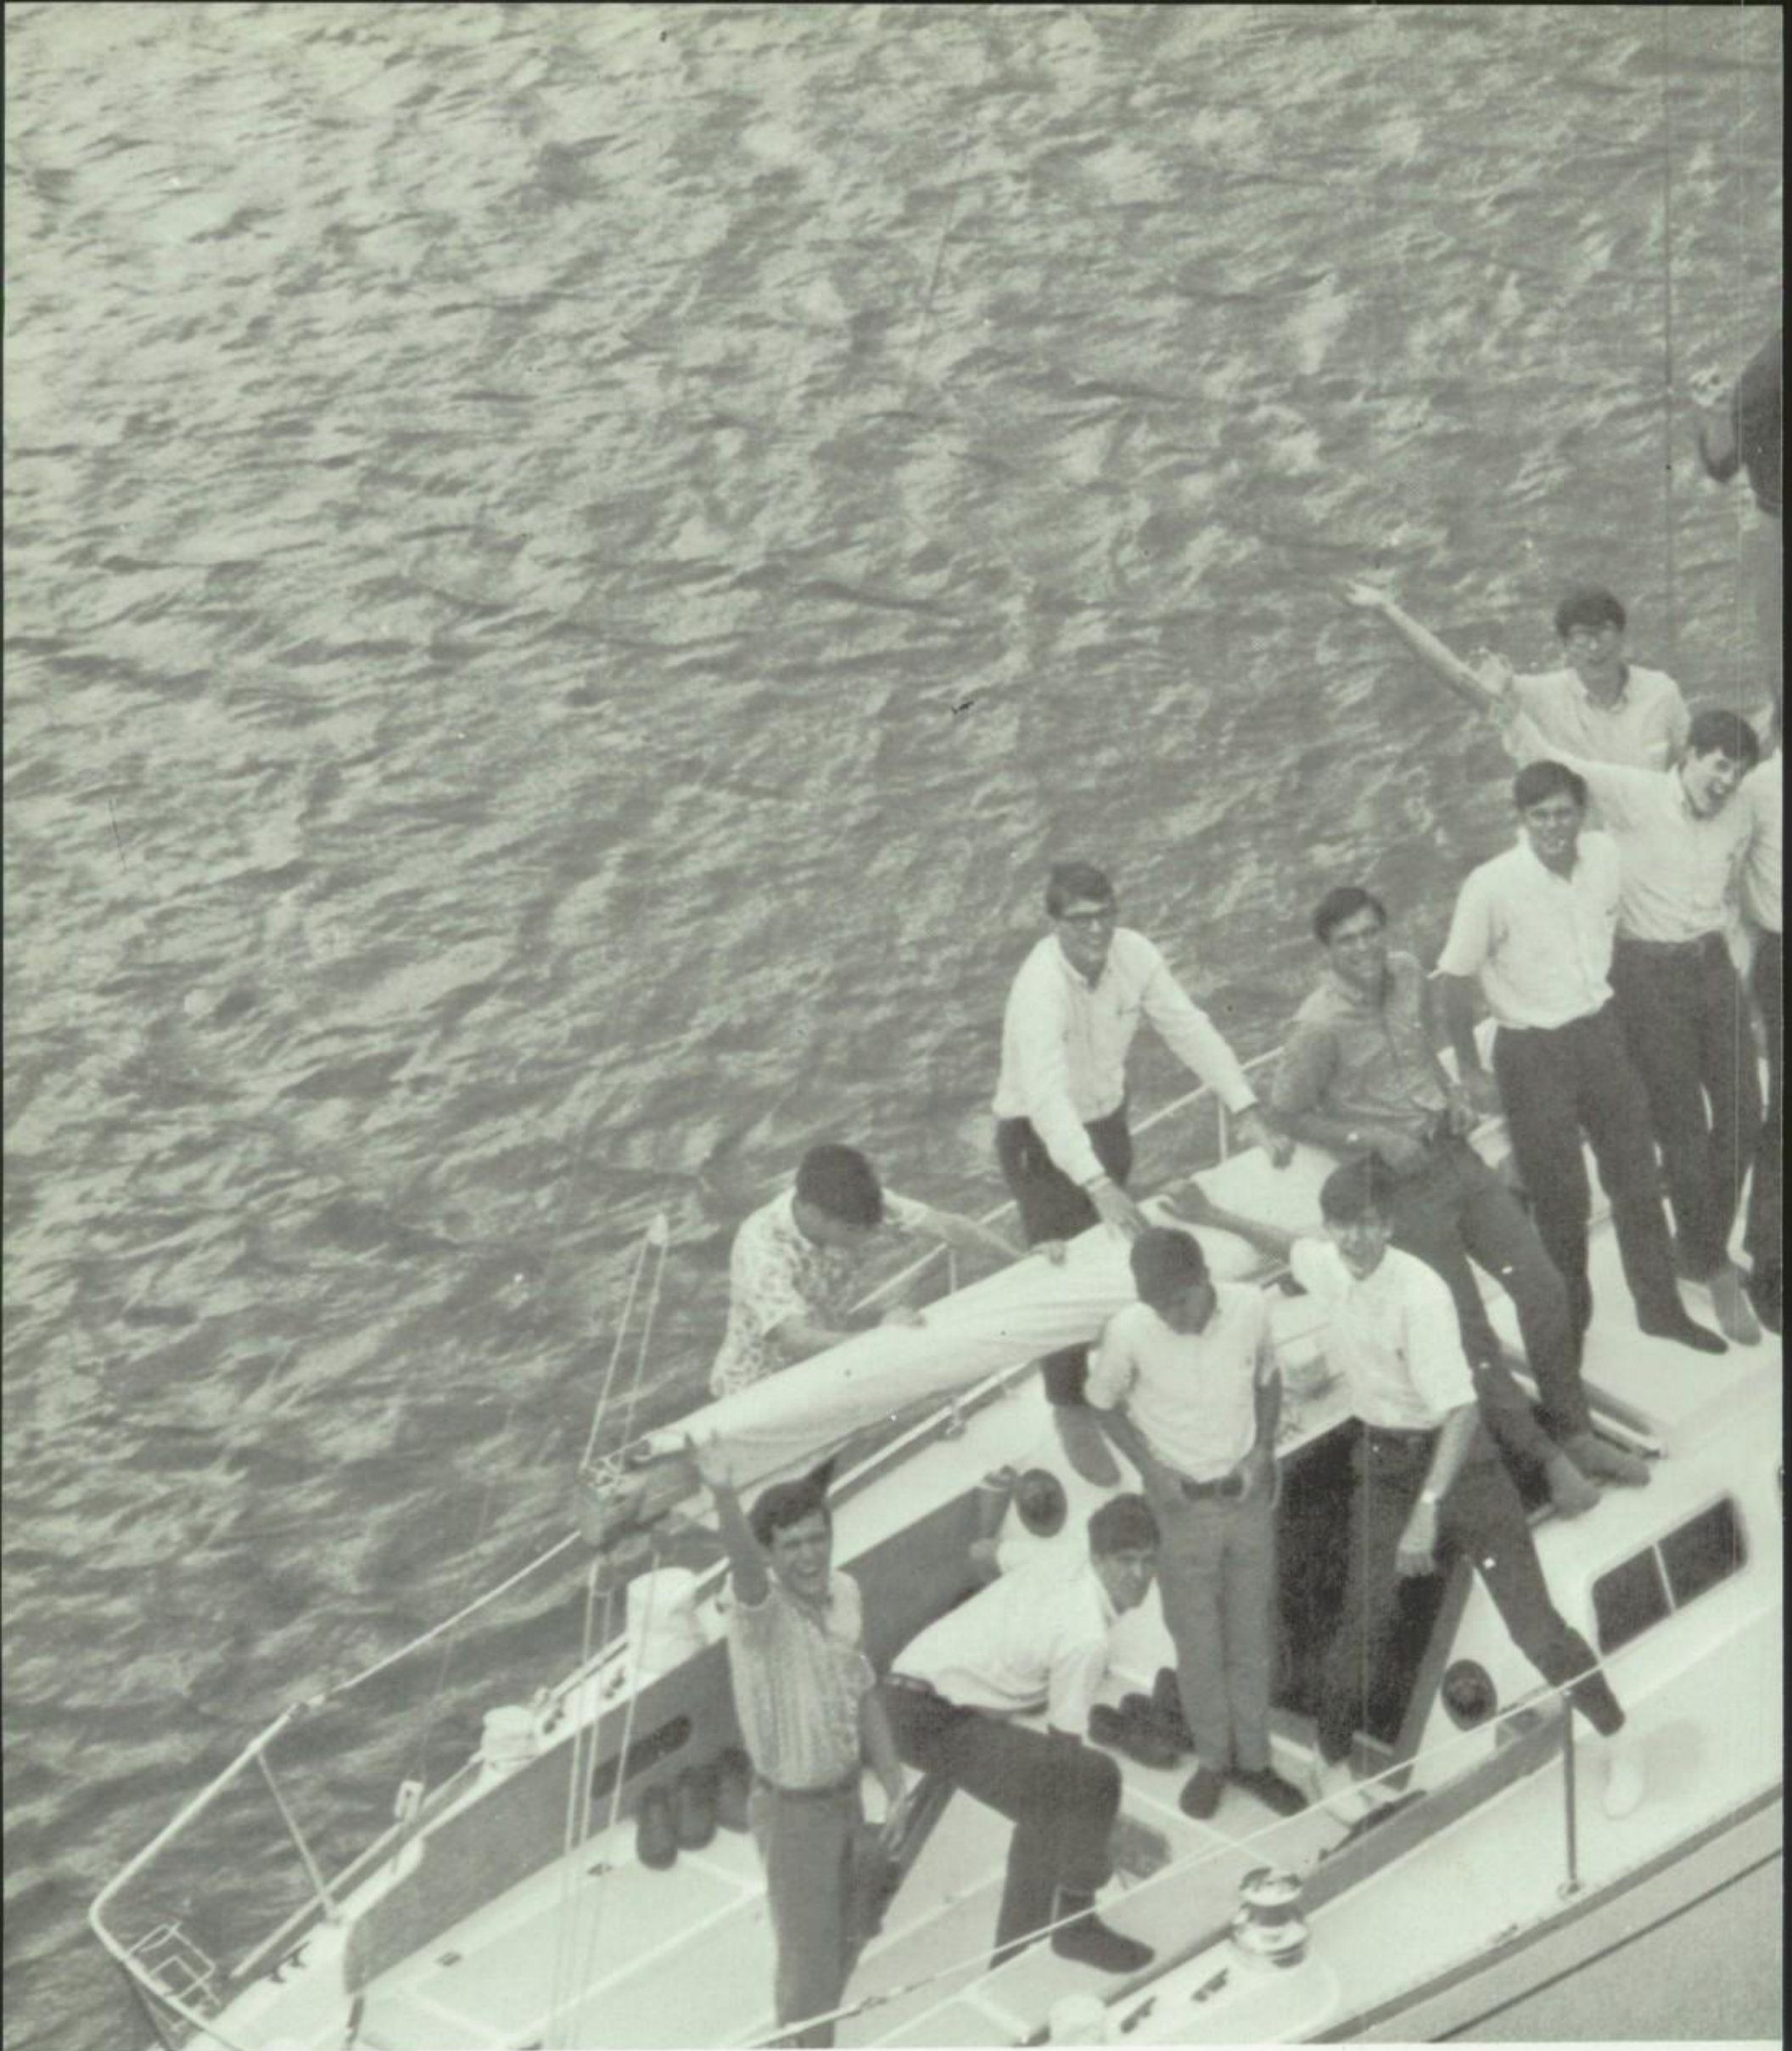

"Alright then, it's settled, Mr. Murphy and Brother Howard are impeached."

THE YEAR OF THE
CAVALIER

Valedictorian Wilfred Romero

One of the many outstanding Cavaliers of the Class of '68, Wilfred Romero's efforts both in and out of De La Salle make him truly worthy to become this year's valedictorian.

Will has progressed at such academic speed that he was allowed to take two senior courses in his junior year, and as a result attended two classes at Tulane University during his senior year.

Besides having the highest scholastic average of this year's senior class, Will has served as state president of Louisiana's chapter of Mu Alpha Theta, and also as a member of the Cavalier, National Honor Society, and Science Club.

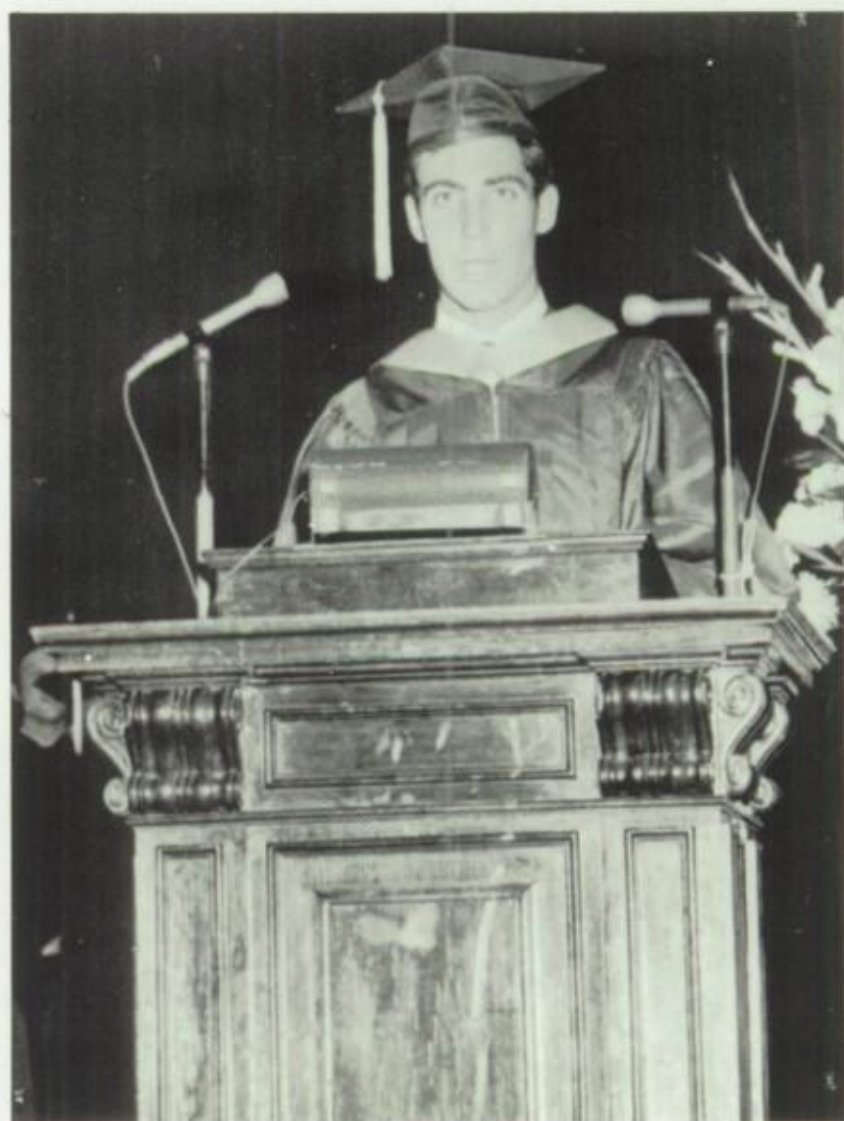

Looking back on Will's high school career, we can truthfully say that when he enters the halls of Yale this fall, its ivy covered walls will be gaining a fine example of what it means to be a Cavalier.

Salutatorian John Olivier

The Salutatorian of 1968 is John Olivier, one of the most dedicated and conscientious scholars in De La Salle's history. A regular member of the state rally team, John took three trips to Baton Rouge, and returned with two first place medals in Algebra I and Latin II. Besides these statewide prizes, John distinguished himself at De La Salle by consistently placing in the annual gold medal English contest.

His scholastic achievements can be matched only by his vigorous participation in De La Salle's extracurricular program. John's warm and friendly nature led him to take part in the achievements of the National Honor Society, Civics Club, JETS, and Mu Alpha Theta. As is obvious, his activities are for the most part concerned with the field of Mathematics, and to this end John intends to continue his education at Tulane, where he will pursue a career in engineering.

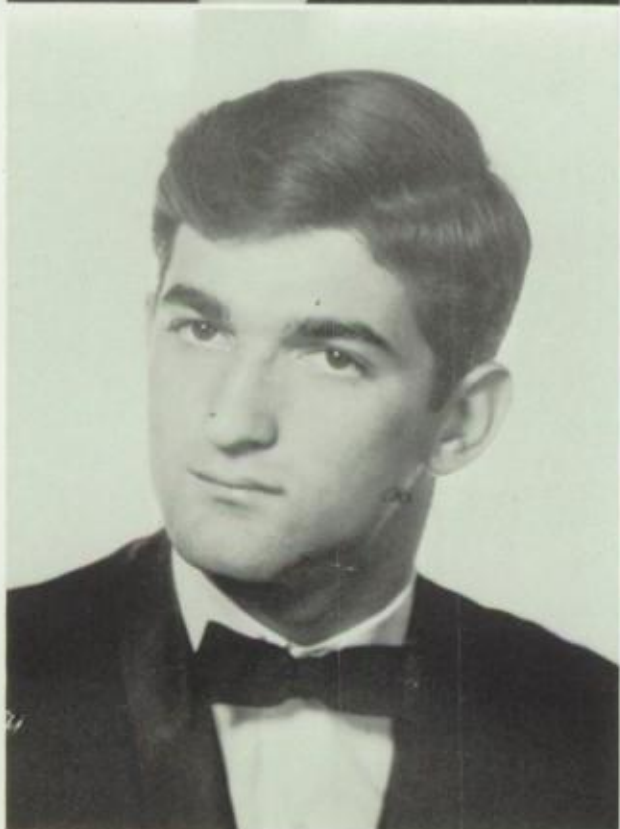

We at De La Salle wish John as much success at the university as he attained as a Cavalier.

Stein sparking the march. He kept the drive going with a 21-yard reception of a pass from quarterback Paul Seckso for a first down at the Aloysius' 38. Then the big play came on a fourth-and-nine situation at the Gormley Stadium. Crusader 37. With the Cavs in a punt formation, Stein received the snap from center and found a hole at left tackle and race 80 yards for a first down at the Aloysius seven-yard line. Four plays later the Cavs were on the scoreboard. St. Aloysius cashed in on a big opportunity to tie the score two plays into the 19th quarter. The Cavs' Brian Chappuis went back to punt from his own four-yard line, but fumbled the snap and his knee touched the ground, giving the Crusade possession at that spot.

Fullback Richard Bordel smashed at the Cavalier line twice and picked up two yards each time, and on the final play went over for the tally. Falat conversion tied the score at 7

THE YEAR OF THE CAVALIER

Epilogue

An epilogue is supposed to cover all of the things that aren't mentioned in the yearbook; all the people that should be recognized, as well as the ideas of the editor.

With that in mind, I would like to thank a few people who worked and contributed to the Maroon Legend this year. The joke around the yearbook office is that the editor gets all the honors during the school year and all the work during the summer. That wasn't true this summer. I would like to thank Brother Justin, our moderator, for letting me help him with his yearbook. This man not only taught school, counselled and tutored his students after, and prepared lessons, but also found the most important things for yearbooks is pictures. They tell the story. We were fortunate to have great storytellers. Thank you, Brother Freeman, Frank Beatrous, Lee Dupont, and the rest of the Photography Club. Special thanks in that department must be extended to Mr. Paul Palermo of Tipery's Studio for the pictures, equipment, film, and advice that he gave free of charge. I have to thank all of the people who came around after school when we were working and gave us moral support. Thanks to all those that I've forgotten, you know who you are and that's all that's important.

"What do you think they'll do if they find us!"

Yearbooks are supposed to be a record of the events and the people involved in a particular year. Fifty years from now, when people look back on 1968 at De La Salle, the message I hope will be time to do, by himself, the major part of the work involved in putting together this book. Watching him work was inspirational. I would also like to say a few words about Hank Turner, next year's editor, but I think next year's yearbook will say more than I ever could. He is hard-working and imaginative and without him, this school would be hard put to come up with a yearbook from 1968. Thanks are also in line to Billy Gaudet for his help with the senior section, John McAuliffe, John O'Connor, Cliff Newlin, Nickie Geraci, David Manson, and John Lacourge. Our typists mustn't pass without recognition. They are Mike Archer, Scott Danos, and Randy Haase. One of conveyed to them through the Maroon Legend is that this was "the Year of the Cavalier" This was one of those special years when the right people, the right attitude, and the right ideas all came together. The results were something every Cavalier should be proud of. De La Salle made itself known in the city by its showing on the "Prep Quiz Bowl," the televised quiz program modeled after the famous "College Quiz Bowl". De la Salle retired undefeated. The Cavs were recognized state-wide by having the number one football team in Louisiana for three weeks and for making it to the state semi-finals in basketball. There were also swimming titles and wrestling champions.

This was one of the first years that D.L.S. had an effective student council. They initiated programs such as some of the best homecoming week dances that the school has ever seen, having a meeting in front of the student body, and having a "Cavalier of the Month Award." Most important of all, they returned to De la Salle the pride in itself that makes a great school the best. The Student Council must share some of this praise with the student body, however. Everything that the school did, they did with enthusiasm. The cheerleaders deserve a big cheer for their fine job in keeping the spirit of the Cavs high all year long.

Like I said before, this was one of those special years and these were special people. They are to be congratulated.

De La Salle was blessed with a great faculty this year. Teachers are a major force behind any school. A school is only as good as its faculty and De La Salle is great, so you know what type of profs we have. It was their push in the right direction, their encouragement, their interest that made De La Salle take a big step forward this year.

I couldn't finish this talk without mentioning the Class of '68. To them I dedicate this epilogue. They were the Foundation upon which this year was built. These graduates can proudly take their place as one of the best classes in the history of De La Salle (and D.L.S.) has had some good ones).

I've just about run out of things to say, but not things to tell you. I'll leave that up to this book. This year will be thought of by some with unpleasant memories, others will be unimpressed, but I believe most will remember this year as one of their best for they were Cavaliers in their year.
